

Adjusting the Display When Connected to a Projector

If you would like your laptop's screen to stay the same size when connected to a projector, try the following: (This will eliminate the black columns down each side of your laptop's screen.)

1. Connect your laptop to the projector.
2. Click on the Apple at the top left of your screen.
3. Click on System Preferences.
4. In the System Preferences window, click on Displays.
5. In the Built-in Displays window, under the Display tab, click on the button beside Optimize for and choose Built-in Display.

6. Click the red button to close the window.

(Note: This must be done when your laptop is connected to a projector. Once you make the change, the laptop should remember the setting. If you are using a promethean board, this will not work for you.)